CHAS. M. PEACHAM, EDITOR.

HOPKINSVILLE, JUNE 7, 1881.

Democratic Ticket FOR STATE TREASURER, HON. J. W. TATE, OF FRANKFORT.

There is no idea among the Pagans that marriage in June are always happy.

The editor of the Altonville Gazette uses "I" instead of "we" in his editorials.

The average girl is much harder to please in getting a wedding dress than in selecting her husband.

Sara Bernhardt is going to be married to Mr. Angelo her leading man. We suppose it will be a bony wife wedding this time.

Judge Buckley of this State has decided that the reading of newspaper reports does not disqualify a man from serving as a juror, in criminal cases.

The postponement of the K. P. A. meeting will fall especially hard on Allison Holland the next orator. He will have to bottle up his eloquence for several months longer.

The Breckinridge News pays Capt. Gales a very handsome compliment and this upon the Temporary of its county to endorse him for Clerk of the Court of Appeals.

David Murray and Miss Westover, of Markeesan, Wis., aged respectively 18 and 16 years, suicided because the father of the girl quarreled against her lover. They must have had it bad.

The reason Colleges call the winding up of the session commencement must be because the girls commence to flirt as soon as they get out of school.

The revised New Testament is attracting more attention just now than even Malone or Conkling. We doubt if there is one man in a dozen who has read the old edition enough to tell what changes have been made in the new.

The great and only Gen. Grant, had his baggage truck robbed on a Missouri railroad the other day. The thief, a man named King, was caught and the stolen articles recovered.

The Hardshell Baptists of Graves county will have a foot-washing on the third Sunday in this month. The reunion of the Henderson News ought to encourage all to attend and take part in the ceremonies.

The Court of Appeals has decided that Gov. Blackburn had no authority to fill a vacancy on the Appellate bench by appointment, and, therefore, Duke will not therefore be commissioned. An election will be ordered at an early date.

Major Robert Clark, aged forty, was married to Mrs. Sallie Campbell, aged fifty-one, last Sunday week at Esopus Babb's in Tennessee. Most of our readers to know that they were both from Simpson county and that we don't allow such doings as this in Logan.—Logan Sentinel.

That is an instance when matrimony has been made child's play.

The Radclifters and Republicans of Virginia have formed a coalition and nominated a mixed State ticket. Mahone and many of the Republican leaders are satisfied, but there is talk, by a part of the party, of nominating a straight ticket. Democrats are confident that they can defeat all of them by an overwhelming majority.

The postponement of the meeting of the Kentucky Press Association was announced in the Frankfort Yeoman last week. The announcement was not unexpected; as the executive committee had delayed making the necessary arrangements till summer was upon us. One of them has been absent from the State till recently, and the other is canvassing for office and the meeting was not arranged at the regular time, although a place was selected. It will not be held before September, probably not at all, and the whole State press is deprived of the pleasure of a reunion because it doesn't suit the convenience of one or two members.

One of the most gorgeous affairs in the history of Siam was the occasion of the coronation of the body of the royal princess, Sun-ta-rat, who was drowned some ten months ago. The royal family were crossing the Chao Phraya river when the barge in which the Princess and her infant daughter, were, was capsized and they and the nurse drowned. The Princess might have been saved but the customs of the country punish with death any man who touches a member of the Royal family. The attempts did not dare attempt to rescue her, even after death, till commanded by the King to do so.

The body was embalmed and prepared for a grand and costly affair. She was the King's favorite wife, as well as his half-sister, and he spared neither labor nor expense to give due honor to her remains. The funeral pyre was erected at a cost of $300,000. The cremation took place a short while since and the display was never equaled in the kingdom. The ashes of the Princess were preserved and placed in an urn made of the jewels of the deceased favorite.

Attack on Mr. Davis.

Jeff Davis, the worn out, aged negotiator of petticoat lands has gone to Canada. It is to be hoped he will remain there, Jeff's England. He will remain in public life to secure an English copyright. His plan is to go to Canada because he is not legally a citizen of the United States, and he is not entitled to citizenship. He has seen the prime cause of the rebellion, and the result of it, and he wants to forget the past. We are not bound to forget anything one will lack, as every爱国者 does. We are bound to remember as we would that they should do the same. We are willing to confess that the South is right, and we are willing to write the history of our degradation in the next horizon. We have major good intentions, but when subjected to the pressure of the South, we are compelled to pick up the Southern bullet, but when subjected to the pressure of the North, we are compelled to pick up the Northern bullet.

There is nothing more distasteful to us than a newspaper controversy. We always strive to avoid them and engage in them only in defense of our own principles, or our people. The last number of the Hopkinsville Republic contained the above article denunciatory of Mr. Jefferson Davis, which was a surprise to our people, after the editor's voluntary declaration that he came to our midst, not as an invader and a later of the South, but as a friend, an American, regarding the Southern people with feelings of kindness and brotherly love. In a lengthy editorial, last week, the very issue in which his attack upon Mr. Davis appears, to speak of the hospitable manner in which he has been received. Our people, regardless of politics, received him with open arms, and he says they have encouraged and patronized him beyond his fondest expectations. He declares that editorial that he is no longer a Pennsylvania, but an American, and an adopted Kentuckian; and that he cherishes no feelings of animosity towards those who met him in battle array, but his conduct is very inconsistent. He comes with the olive branch of peace in one hand and the sword in the other. In one column he declares his love for the South and Southerners and in another he opens the flood gates of his wrath and pours out a torrent of his abuse upon the venerable head, whitened by the snows of time, of one who occupies a place in every true Southerner's heart second only to Washington and Lee. He forgets that he stands upon the very spot of Mr. Davis' birth, and that he is a native of Christian community and that the very people who have warmed him in their bosoms, are those who delight to honor the great Southern statesman. Our neighbor's avowal that it would afford him the greatest of pleasure to write the ordinary of one so degraded within the next fortnight, has raised a storm of indignation against him among those who extended to him a cordial welcome, believing that he came to heal the wounds of war and not tear them open afresh.

The Grange Stock Sale.

Mr. M. B. King, the business like secretary of Church Hill Grange, notified the public through our columns a week or more ago that there would be a sale of stock at that place on Friday, June 3rd, and extended a cordial invitation to all to attend who might feel so disposed. In pursuance of said invitation, quite a number of our citizens made an early start to the scene of operations. The day was fine; no dust, no heat, no whiskey. Mr. J. C. Castle, as chairman of the stock committee, was general director, and manipulated the sale in a masterly way, indicative of considerable experience in such matters. Our Capt. John C. Day, acted as his worthy captain of auctioneer. Mr. M. B. King, clerk of the sale, reports the number and prices of stock in another column.

Promised at 12 o'clock, the large crowd repaired to the dinner table, which was spread with such a feast of good things, as the ladies of Church Hill Grange alone seem to know how to prepare. We paid a more substantial compliment, however, when we say that had not the supply been next to inexhaustible, the demand had not been met. But it seems that the ladies expected some of us town fellows out and had prepared for the emergency. Only one thing was lacking to make the bill of fare complete—there was nothing in the line of liquor on the grounds except a William Goat offered by Mr. J. T. Evans. After dinner the remainder of the stock was sold. The sale of stock was over at 3 o'clock. The grangers then drew in their heads and had a secret meeting, and we outsiders returned to our several homes with a comfortable impression of a well-spent day and one more square meal.

MACEDONIA.

Picnic at Dawson Saturday the 4th. Spring chickens and Game, come in great profusion and deliciousness. We have the best wines of California for their ladies magic charm.

Rev. J. W. McIlveen, of Mailisonville, could not fill his appointment to preach the annual sermon before the young ladies of South Kentucky College Sunday night. Rev. J. J. Spence, pastor of the Christian Church of Clarksville, was telegraphed and advised in the city at seven o'clock without knowing the character of the discourse he was expected to deliver. He addressed a crowded house and his sermon, though short, was highly interesting and well suited to the occasion.

We call special attention to the conspicuous advertisement of Messrs. Cross Ducker and Dryer, found in another column. These gentlemen besides being experts in their line, are to be relied upon under any and all circumstances to carry out to the letter every order they may promise to fill. They have won an enviable reputation for integrity and skill, and rank among the leading business firms of our city. Call and see them, or leave your order.

Our Sunday school is being reorganized at this place and is progressing finely under the auspices of our young superintendent J. V. McGeary.

Mr. J. G. Champlin the photographer will probably open his tent at this place to day.

EXCHANGE SCINTILLATIONS.

There is no land; some girls would sooner go to than beg land.—[Dittoe.] Convicting a man of perjury perjury is a tortiousity of the law.—[Ginelle.]

Cheat is making its appearance in meadows and in long-haired, itinerant corn-doctors and catarrh smashers.—[Glasgow Times.]

Virtue, a rose in the hair and a plain, clean, white muslin dress in the most bewitching dress a maiden can wear.—[Dittoe.]

The Louisville Post is an asylum for feeble-minded editors, that explains its silly assaults on Senator Beck.—[Gruelle.]

Some one afflicted with lunacy has started a paper at Battie Creek, Mich., called the Nightly Moon. Wonder it, too, gets full!—[Green West.]

A hardware man shows his hose and there is nothing said about it; but when a girl shows her hose, there is a terrible talk about it.—[State Journal.]

Miss Eva Kinney has retired from Miss Ellis (Ka.) Headlight, and taken editorial charge of a husband. Her future articles will be set in small caps.—[Ginelle.]

A new publication is called "The Fair Barbarian." We haven't seen the book, but presume it is as reference to a belle who hangs out her house.—[Owensboro M. and E.]

A New York man has an artificial eye which costs a thousand dollars. His deception is so perfect that he can see through it. That is what may be called an eye dear.—[Glasgow Times.]

Honesty is said to be the best policy, but people now-a-days are so patriotic and self-sacrificing that they always went their neighbors to have the best of everything, except a trade.—[Glasgow Times.]

So long as the world lasts there will always be somebody to raise hell and exact revenge, notwithstanding the Newest Testament calls these twin foes of civilization by other names.—[Evangelist Courier.]

Yes, though they were second cousins, John Bower and Mary Bower concluded to marry, because she held the left bower and he the right. It was done, however, while in the heat of excitement.—[Dittoe.]

When an idle man comes around during your business hours, he thinks he has a right to be offended if you don't drop your work and devote all of your time to him so he has leisure time to waste.—[Dittoe.]

The wicked flea has invaded the sanctity of woman's boudoir, and when the shades of evening wrap their cable manto around tired nature, and the curtain is surely drawn and the key hole studded, then comes the tug of war, or words to that effect, so we have been told.—[Glasgow Times.]

The average country newspaper editor is returning thanks through the columns of his "valuable" paper for favors, in the way of a luscious repast of red-ripe strawberries sent to his sanctum by Mrs. Col. Somebody or Mrs. Judge. What's-his-name.—[Columbus Times.]

MacVeagh for liberty he cried, MacVeagh for liberty and tried the star thief.—[Boston Post.]

Good pun, a pun-in-which there is wit; but it begins to look as if the Pennsylvania Cabinet officer were about to MacVeagh for Jim Blaine and Chandler.—[American.]

A great many people are living or rather for handout use of the mail nowadays. Under this head we call attention to the designing young woman who dresses in white and looks sweet at a fellow for the sole purpose of inveigling him into an ice cream parlor. If this isn't a fraudulent use of the male, what is it?—[Sunday Argus.]

The Princess Stephania of Austria burst into tears while being married recently because she saw a young American who was her former lover among the guests. It is very naughty in the American young men to go across the water and break the hearts of the fair damsels of Europe. The W. P. A. should see to it that Meacham of the South Kentuckian is kept from going abroad.—[Fleming Co. Gazette.]

A gentleman had five daughters, the first of whom married a man by the name of Poor, the second a Mr. Little, the third a Mr. Short, the fourth a Mr. Brown, the fifth a Mr. Hogg. At the wedding of the latter, her sisters, with their husbands, were there and the old gentleman said to the guests: "I have taken pains to educate my daughters, that they may act well their part in life and to honor my family. I find that all my pains, care and expectations have turned to nothing but a Poor, Little, Short Brown, Hogg!"—[Ex.]

EMPIRE.

As my first stamp was not con-signed to the waste basket, but was-humped with a place in your excellent columns, I will make another, trusting that it may not be entirely devoid of interest to the many readers of the KENTUCKIAN.

A jolly Evansville drummer (will not tell his name) received a very warm reception from some of the minister boys here last week. They marched him down to a barrel of Tom Walker's apple brandy which was in the depot, procured a ginseng and drew off a few quarts and by threat and persuading him they soon had a few gills of the "fire water" under the old fellow's belt. Of course 'twas against his grain to drink it.

Quiller.

A Western Hero.

People who are on the watch to procure material for great moral shows should hardly neglect "Buckshot Bill." According to the frontier papers, this gentleman, a pupil of Kit Carson and "Bill," speaks twenty-five Indian tongues; once saw eleven of his comrades burned alive by the Comanches; signed with his blood before a magistrate a vow to have the scalps of eleven Indians who killed his brother and stole his diamond pin; pursued those Indians with one comrade, and killed six; and now has 117 scalps hanging in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, which were in his depot procured a ginseng and drew off a few quarts and by threat and persuading him they soon had a few gills of the "fire water" under the old fellow's belt. Of course 'twas against his grain to drink it.
